Thousands of visiting bloyelists are in Boston, and even the cold, wet and cloudy weather could not spoil the success of the first day of the sixth annual meet of the League of American Wheelmen. About sixty riders began at 10 october, About sarly littless were in the party, twenty-seven of them being ladies in natty bleyeling suits. Tandems, each carrying a lady and gentleman, were in the majority among the machines, but nearly a dozen ladies rode single tricy-less. The sevent of the development but nearly a dozen ladies rode single tricy-cles. The event of the day was the climb-ing contest at Corry Hill, which proved to be an unusually interesting struggle. Two hundred uniformed wheelmen rode in a body out to the hill, which is in Brook-line, two and a-half miles from the city. The road up the hill is 2,300 feet long, with an average rise of one foot in 11.41, and at one point on the hill the rise is one in 7.85 feet. It has always been re-garded as a test for evelishs, and a very ago is one in 7.85 feet. It has always been regarded as a test for cyclists, and a year ago only two men in the county had succeeded in riding to the top without stopping. Every available point on the hillside was occupied by sight-seers, and a dozen photographers had their cameras ready to catch the struggling wheelmen. Six started, and C. E. Rirge on a Star, accomplished the feat in im., 13.4-5 s.; Mr. Haradou of Springfield in 3 m., 42 s.; Horace Crocker, in 4.m., 14.3-5 s., and George E. The office of Recorder of Deeds still remains in the bands of Frederick Douglass and will until Mr. Matthews is either confirmed or rejected. There has been a very lively turn in real estate during the last two weeks. The receipts of the Recorder's office at present net the Recorder about $40 a day. Mr. Douglass is at present in Massachusetts lecturing. Since the Fresident nominated his successor he takes no interest in the office. The bulk of the work is done by colored subordinates. Eight colored women do most of the copying and recording and the income continues to go to Douglass. The springtime is the best for good receipts. Mr. Matthews will find, if he should be confirmed late in the session, that Mr. Douglass has already had the bulk of the revenues of the office for the year.

AMERICAN OPERA. IN CONGRESS TO-DAY.

The Association to be Formed in This City.

When Mrs. F. B. Thurber, head of he American School of Opera in New York, met a number of Washington ladies some days ago to discuss the formation of a branch association in this city, very little was accomplished, and ft was decided to adjourn the meeting until 3:30 p. m., Wednesday of this week. Mrs. Thurber was detained in Chicago until Tuesday, but determined to arrive here in time for the meeting to further the interests of her beloved igation of the appointment of Indian school. When she reached Pittsburg she found that If she went by the regular train she would be too late.

She accordingly chartered a special train at a cost of $300 from the B. and O. Company, which delivered her safe in Washington at 3:12 Wednesday afterness begins reade the run of 302 ternoon, having made the run of 392 miles in less than eight hours. The meeting convened at the residence of Mr. John Fields, on New Hampshire avenue, and was not much better atdefinite was accomplished. Some of those present, and Mr. W. W. Cor-coran (who did not attend), signified coran (who did not attend), signified their willingness to enter upon the scheme, but others more thoughtful are doubtful as to its success here.

The plan as proposed by Mrs. Thurber is, that the people of Washington shall subscribe a certain amount—fifty to one hundred thousand dollars—to the stock of the incorporated company in New York and establish a "branch" here by guaranteeing to the subscribers a season of opera each year like that recently given at Albaugh's Opera-House.

There is to be no branch institute here for instruction of singers, but seventy-five per cent. will go direct to the New York head, while the balance of the subscription may be held here subject to future assessment if neces subject to future assessment if neces-sary. The subscribers will have some such privileges during the opera "season" as those enjoyed by stock-holders of the New York Academy of Music—paying full prices for boxes or seats, but taking one-half of the re-ceipts over and above all expenses of producing the operas. Mrs. Thurber proposes to have branches established in Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Cincinnati, St. Louis and Chicago, to which latter city she returned at once after the meeting here on Wednesday.

SCENES AT THE JAIL.

The Prisoner Breaks Down and Sobs Like a Child.

Antonio Nardello, the murderer of Carmine Rotunno, paid the penalty of his crime by being hanged at the Dis. trict jail at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon. Nardello went to sleep at 2 o'clock this morning and slept quietly until 6 o'clock. His conversation before going to his cell was not of the nature that would indicate in the least that he appreciated the fact that to-day he was to die. When he arose this morning he dressed himself neatly in a black suit, and, without any apparent perturbance, waited for his breakfast. He partook of that meal with a good appe-

He made an exception to this, however, in favor of a young Italian, who called to bid him good-bye. That visitor was one of Nardello's friends among the Italians who have clung to

RELIGIOUS CONSOLATION. At 9 o'clock Father Ryan of the Church of the Immaculate Conception arrived and remained with his penitent until the fatal drop. At 12:30 Father Devine of St. Peter's Church came and assisted Father Ryan in consoling Nar-dello and preparing him for his death. Just before Father Devine arrived Nardello was visited by his counsel, Mr. James M. Fields, a very young man, who worked very hard for his client, and Colonel Mancosses who was equally active in the man's behalf. It was a visit of parting. Colonel Mancosses told Nardelio to be brave and keep a stout heart. 'I will,' was the After the minutes of the paret announce that the first thing in order was the completion of the election of deputies to the general convention by selecting two clerical deputies and one lay deputy. The names of Messrs, Gibson and Baldwin were withdrawn and Messrs. Hodges, Eccleston, William Leonard, Lowndes and Econard, Lowndes and Fields asked him if he had anything further to say or had any writing to leave. He replied that he had not. Colonel Mancosses and Mr. Fields then bade Nardello good bye after speaking some words of condo-wardello, as the tears gusher with the second color of the election of deputies to the general convention by selecting two clerical deputies and one lay deputy. The names of Messrs, Gibson and Baldwin were withdrawn and Messrs. The Colonel also said that Nardello had made no confession. "All he has said," continued Colonel Moncossos. "is that he knew Rotunno was to be killed, and that he went for Officer Bailey to come and prevent the crime, but could not find him. He admitted seeing the deed done, but contended all along that it was the work of Pas-quale Abendante and Pasquale Gesamunte, the latter holding Ro while the folmer used the razor."

THE CONFESSION DENIED. Mr. Fields, when asked by the reporter if Nardello had confessed, said: 'I have heard it said that he has.' After the visit of Colonel Moncosses and Mr. Fields Nardello was left with his ghostly confessors. Those who were present to witness the execution strolled, as such congregations always do, about the rotunda of the jail, talking carelessly and aimlessly, except for a somewhat excited Italian here and the, or peering curiosly down the execution corridor and into the sorridor in which is lo-cated Murderers Row, where, before the doomed man's door, paced a priest in robes. There were about one hundred and fifty people on hand to see a neck broken. In and out of them quickly went General Crocker and Deputy Warden Russ, who had charge of the execution.

AWAITING THE HOUR. As the time drew near the crowd formed in a line from the gate leading into Murderers' Row, across the rotunda, to the entrance of Execution Row. About 1 o'clock there went through the crowd a report that Nar-dello had "weakened." He was slightly overcome at that time but soon railled. The officers went in and out of the corridor where Nardello was, on duty not connected with him. The on duty not connected with him. The low voices of the guests and a lower response from Nardello could now and then be heard as the hands of the clock went slowly around after 1 o'clock. The last sacrament of the Holy Catholic Church was administered. In his responses during that ceremony Nardello's voice was choked with sobs. He cried piteously and did not cease his sobs until the voice of Deputy Warden Russ, who next read the death warrant slowly, but with a the death warrant slowly, but with a clear enunciation, had ceased. HOW HE WAS CAUGHT. History of the Detection and Conviction of Nardello. Antonio Nardello, alias Michael Ross, alias Frank Ross, was hung for the murder of Carmine Rotunno, Both the murderer and his victim were Italians. The deed was committed early on the morning of the 29th of July last. Rotunno had accumulated about $500 by his work as a laborer and as a shoemaker. At the time of the murder he was out of employment. He boarded at the house of another Italian named Guido, on Eighth street, beyond the Boundary. Nardello was one of the men employed on the water works extension, and it was under the pretense of getting employment there for him that Nardello entired Rotunno o an old, unoccupied building to the east of the reservoir, and near Howard University. It was there that the murder was committed.

ome days. On the 1st of August an awful smell was noticed about the old building, which resulted in an investigation to discover what it was caused by. Rotunno was found dead in one of the rooms on the second floor. He was lying on his left side with his arm under his head and a big gash in his throat. The body was so decomposed that it was almost impossible to remain near it, so overpowering was the stench that arose. He was last seen alive by his acquaintances early on the morning of the 25th, when he left Guido's house in company with Ro tunno and was supposed to have all of his money with him. Suspicion naturally pointed to Nardello, and he was arrested on the night of the day that the body was discovered as he was about to leave the city in company with a colored woman, Willa Morris, with whom he had spent most of his time on Maryland avenue after the murder.

On his trial the evidence was a long time in being developed, but the crime was brought home to him and he was convicted of murder in the first degre and sentenced to be hanged on the 7th instant. His counsel tried to get a new trial, but it was denied. Nardello had claimed all along that he had accom-plices, and named two men as such, but they accounted for themselves satisfac torily. After the refusal of the Courto grant a new trial, his counsel an the Italian Minister endeavored persist-ently to induce the President to commute the sentence. They did secure a respite for three weeks. During that time Nardello was a number of times examined by the District Attorney, but he told different tales, and nothing was brought forth to show, as his counse claimed, that he had accomplices. The President refused to interven nd the law took its course. After Nardello became satisfied that here was no hope for executive elem would be carried into effect at the exdration of the respite granted by he President, he lost his lively spirit and became very sedate. He talked ittle about his case or situation, exept to those who have been identified n his defense and trying to secure a commutation of his sentence. In conversation with one of these gentlement day or two ago he related what he aid was the truth of the murder, and which might be termed a confession of his guilt. He said that on the Tuesday before the murder he met Carmino Ro-tunno, whom he thought had a good deal of money, and told him that he knew of a place where they could both get work to do. Rotunno was wishing to get something to do and so expressed himself. Nardello and he

ON THE SCAFFOLD.

The scaffold was mounted at 1-23.
Looking upward Nardello, as his legs were being tied, uttered a loud prayer in Italian. Fathers Devine and Ryan then prayed, The former asked Nardello if he wished to say anything. The latter replied in Italian and Father Ryan translated what he said.

BASEBALL. Undoubtedly the happiest crowd that eve assembled to witness a baseball game in this city, was the gathering that witnessed he termination of the Washington-Chicago game yesterday. Every one felt that the magnificent victory fully atoned for the recated defeats during the recent Western trip. All that was hoped or expected was that the Nationals would give the Whites a close contest, possibly a defeat by a small margin, but the wildest dreams of the greatmargin, but the wildest dreams of the great-est enthusiast never conceived the expecta-tion that the home nine would completely shut out the visitors. Only twice did a Chicagoan reach third base, and in each case he was prevented from scoring by brilliant playing, the first being cut off by a throw from center field just before reacting the home plate, and the second detained by a difficult fly-catch in left field. The score:

Her Arrival in New York Last Night On Board

RED STAR STEAMER NOORDLAND.

Taken Off in a Revenue Cutter by Colonel Dan Lumont

WHEN WILL THE WEDDING BE?

NEW YORK, May 28,-Miss Folsom arrived from Europe last night on the steamer Nordland of the Red Star Line. The steamer was met at Quarantine by a revenue-cutter, with Colonel Lamont and Health Officer Smith on board. Miss Folsom, her mother and her uncle, Mr. Benjamin Folsom, were taken aboard the cutter and brought to the city, where they joined Miss Rose Cleveland, who has been staying at the house of a friend here for several days. The reporters, who have been vigilantly watching for Miss Folsom's arrival, were completely outwitted by the precautions which had been taken to secure secreey for that event. Only two of the morning papers publish the fact of the lady's arrival, and even the representatives of those lucky journals were unable to obtain

AN INTERVIEW WITH BER or even to follow the movements of the revenue cutter closely enough to carn where the party were landed, much less where they took up their abode for the night. It is learned from her fellow passengers on the Nordland that Miss Folsom made many friends during the voyage by her unaffected and winning manner. She is described as tall, handsome, and in complexion a light brunette, with large blue eyes. She contributed a pleasing little story to the Spray, a small paper published by the passengers on the way over. She also distinguished herself by
